

Happy Thanksgiving, Now Leave

Part of the PC Thanksgiving is to remind Americans that we are an immigrant nation. We are all immigrants, except for the holy, immaculate Native Americans, so who are we to judge who gets to be American? Even if your family has been here for over 200 years and fought in the Revolution or over 50 years and served in WWII, you have no special claim to being an American. In fact, a person who breaks the law to enter the U.S., never learns English, brings the older family over to get on Social Security that they never contributed to support, has children here without medical insurance at your expense (and establishes the kids as American citizens), and produces far less in taxes than gets in schools, benefits, etc. is just as much an American - no, better – than you native born Americans, because these ‘undocumented’ persons are victims.

Uncontrolled immigration, instant citizenship, special privileges for non-whites (and sometimes non-Asians) and a multi-cultural speech code and thought police enforcement of ‘diversity’ dictates are PC holy writ. Liberals and weak Republicans refuse to maintain our national sovereignty and defend our borders. In 2010 there will be at least 45 million legal and illegal immigrants in the U.S. — about 14 percent of the country's total projected population. It will only increase.

Being poor in the U.S. is better than almost anything in Latin America, Africa, the Middle East, Eastern Europe and Asia. Most of the world for the foreseeable future will have fewer opportunities, less freedom, and little in the way of personal safety, free education, access to health care as the newest, most poor immigrant to American. The people would be mad to not want to come here. But, should everyone in the world be allowed to come here?

First, consider America as our home. Shouldn't the home of the brave be the house of the compassionate? Don't you open your door to people who are poor, different in color, language and religion as guests? Won't you feed, socialize with and give up the spare room to someone who is needy?

Of course, good Americans will take in the people they invite in. Americans will open their homes as their hearts to others and fill their home. Yet, the exclusivity of only allowing people in your house that you invite and only as many as your house will hold is what makes it a home. So, it is with our American home.

A house which lets everyone in who can get there, has illegal purpose and gains, sells what is precious for profit, and knows no single moral-ethical code is not a home, it's just a warehouse. America with no limits on immigration is prostituted for greed, for PC Commandments and for political corruption.

Second, consider the consequences. Illegal immigration exploits voter fraud. The economy, and unscrupulous businesses, profit from some cheap labor, but the cost in services bankrupts government and lowers real wages for legal Americans. At some point there isn't enough capital to go around and we become a Third World nation of many Have Nots vs. the Haves. Finally, open borders and hiding places among huge illegal populations are an invitation to more drugs, WMD and terrorists.

Third, choose now or never. The U.S. House of Representatives failed to pass a law mandating inter-government cooperation against illegal aliens. A vote that can be declared 'anti-immigrant' by a demagogue means defeat for too many politicians – already. If the Congress is intimidated into inaction, then the time for action is closing fast. Also, at some point the population of immigrants goes beyond assimilation and is simply an invasion. A non-English speaking majority, preferring their own culture – which is not the Rule of Law, and holding greater loyalties to their old country or foreign-directed religion are a threat to the American Republic wherever they run government.

It's time to say, "Happy Thanksgiving, illegal immigrants, now leave. This is our American home, not a whorehouse. We will invite some people in and defend to keep uninvited strangers out."

Close the borders. Declare a three year moratorium on immigration to sort out the mess. Limit immigration to less than a million a year after that. Deport the millions of illegals. Give worker permits, but deny accidental citizenship to their kids and welfare to their old folks. Put their social security in their own private account. 'Americanize' the legal immigrants while we still can.
